

Angie Longacre

Writer, Storyteller, Marketer

Want more than just words?

Your customers and readers do. They want sincerity, they want to feel that you understand their needs and recognize their pain points.

I'm a natural story teller who can get to the heart of your audience and write from their shoes. Whether you want a compelling editorial piece, engaging web content, or enticing product descriptions, I can deliver copy that speaks to your readers with authenticity and personality.

My experience writing for a vast spectrum of industries has enabled me to adapt to diverse styles and voices with ease. And if you need technical or complex information distilled into digestible content, I've got a knack for that, too.

Additionally, my years as a graphic designer give me an edge when collaborating with designers to create complete, effective marketing campaigns.

If you want to get real with your audience, elicit emotions, and keep them coming back, let's talk. Together, we can deliver more than information, we can deliver an experience.
